employmentlaw for employers

Employment law is an area which is constantly evolving, with developments on a daily basis. We have an experienced and dedicated team who deliver timely, high quality advice in this dynamic area.

At Macleod and MacCallum we pride ourselves on being able to provide expert advice on any aspect of employment law, whether that be the drafting and updating of employment contracts and service agreements, restrictive covenants, staff handbooks and policies, or discipline and grievance issues, absence management, employee monitoring, family friendly issues, discrimination and harassment, working time, national minimum wage, data protection, whistleblowing, equal pay, agency workers, dismissal and termination issues, reorganisations, redundancies, outsourcing, TUPE or industrial relations.

Rather than focus on the negatives and what you can't do, Macleod and MacCallum is focussed on providing you with pragmatic solutions as to what can be done and the risks associated with each course of action.
